

CONTRIBUTORS

AUTHORS

Shabib Al-Busaidi graduated from the College of Health Sciences (Bahrain) in 1996. He was awarded a Dip He ACCN 199 (Accident & Emergency Nursing) in 2001 from the University of Central Lancashire and in 2012 gained a BSc (Hons) degree in Nursing, also at UCLan. The essay published here is extracted from his final year dissertation. Shabib is currently studying for an MSc in Nursing here at UCLan; on completion he will return to Oman to continue working for the Armed Forces Hospital in Muscat.

Philip Bradshaw is currently studying for a BSc (Hons) degree in Astrophysics at the University of Central Lancashire. The research article published here was written as part of a Student Internship taken during the summer of 2012 and supported by UCLan's Undergraduate Research Internship programme.

Nigel Clayton was awarded a BSc (Hons) in Astronomy at the University of Central Lancashire in July 2012, having enjoyed sixteen years of study by distance learning with UCLan, beginning whilst in full-time employment and finishing in retirement. This paper is a summary of his final year dissertation. His ambition is to know the nature of the Galactic centre and how spiral galaxies form. He is currently studying electromagnetism.

Rachel Fearon worked in Nursing, as Community Sister for children with learning difficulties, before embarking on a degree course at the University of Central Lancashire. In October 2010 she graduated with a BA (Hons) degree in English Language, Linguistics and Deaf Studies. The article published here is taken from her final year dissertation, which was awarded a distinction. Rachel is currently completing an MA in Linguistic Research here at UCLan, exploring the perceptions of deaf-related terms and phrases of three Communities of Practice (Deaf, Hard of Hearing and Hearing), an area of research which follows on from this article. Upon completion of her MA, Rachel plans to work towards the implementation of this article's recommendations, to continue studying for a PhD and follow a career in research and teaching.

David Murray graduated from the University of Central Lancashire in 2011 with a 2:1 LLB (Hons) degree. The article published here is extracted from his final year dissertation on European Union Law. David is now commencing a Master's degree in Law here at UCLan and, upon completion, hopes to continue studying for a PhD.

Mandhlase Mwanza gained a First Class LLB (Hons) degree in July 2012 at the University of Central Lancashire. The article published here has been extracted from her final year dissertation which was awarded a distinction. Mandhlase recently won The Lord Denning Scholarship from Lincoln's Inn, to pursue the Bar Professional Training Course at Manchester Law School in September 2013. Mandhlase's ambition is to pursue a career as a Barrister.

Jonathan Phillips graduated from the University of Central Lancashire in 2012 with a First Class BA (Hons) degree in Modern World History and was awarded the Sydney Lee Prize for History. The article published here was originally an essay written in his third year for the 'Stalin's Russia' module. Jonathan is currently undertaking a Master's degree, by research, here at UCLan, investigating the Communist Party of Great Britain's policies on war, peace and fascism 1935-39.

FIRST READERS

Katerina Finnis (Senior Lecturer in Linguistics)

Carolyn Gibbon (Principal Lecturer, School of Health)

Shaun Mills (Senior Lecturer, Lancashire Law School)

Stephane Régnier (Research Assistant, Computing, Engineering & Physical Sciences)

Anne Sansom (Senior Lecturer in Astrophysics, Jeremiah Horrocks Institute)

Chris Williams (Professor of Contemporary History)

SECOND READERS

Matthew Astley (Law Graduate)

Daniel Brown (Lecturer in Mathematics & Physics)

Lynne Gabbutt (Postgraduate Student, History)

Angela Kilpatrick (ELSIE Co-ordinator & Associate Lecturer in Linguistics)

Chris Powles (Lecturer, Computing, Engineering & Physical Sciences)

Gill Thomson (Research Fellow, School of Health)

Andrew Walker (MPhys Student, Astrophysics)

EDITOR

Carol Banks (Consultant)

STUDENT EDITOR

Tanya Bamber (Postgraduate Student, Literature)

EDITORIAL TEAM

Matthew Astley (Law Graduate)

Jon Aveyard (Music / Audio Art)

Michael Brightman (LBS)

Kartina Choong (Law)

Janine Coghlan (Religion, Culture & Society student)

Lindsay Cottingham (LIS)

Mandy Dillon (CRiT)

Charlie Frowd (Psychology)

Lynne Gabbutt (History Postgraduate)

John Horrocks (Archaeology Postgraduate)

Angela Kilpatrick (Linguistics)

Carolyn King (Religion, Culture & Society)

Jennifer Lane (Literature graduate)

Claire Meadows-Howarth (Postgraduate Student, Psychology)

Shaun Mills (Law)

Wayne Noble (Publishing Postgraduate)

Chris Powles (Computing, Engineering & Physical Sciences)

Claire Roper (Psychology Postgraduate)

Gill Thomson (Social Work & Midwifery)

Janice Wardle (Literature)

Sarah Wilson (Pharmacy & Biomedical Sciences)